Introduction

This route is intended for tourists who want to experience South Greenland's breathtaking fjords, glaciers, and highlands. This tour provides guests with unique experiences made possible by the state-of-the-art ship, Ultramarine, which has two twin-engine helicopters. You can choose more leisurely, deep experiences or be as busy as you like on this tour.

This itinerary, which was created in collaboration with local communities and is the first of its kind in expedition travel, provides a unique opportunity to experience the splendor of South Greenland's varied fjordlands. Particularly for off-ship excursions, Ultramarine's two helicopters will transport you to parts of South Greenland that others are unable to access. In addition to hiking, village visits, and zodiac cruises, some of these activities, like our Heli Hiking and the Greenland Ice Sheet Experience, are free for all visitors.

Whether you're interested in taking in the tranquil mountain views, sailing through the icebergs on a Zodiac cruise, or trying out optional activities like heli-hiking or luxurious camping on the shores of Tasermiut Fjord with local hosts, this trip has something to offer everyone, regardless of fitness level.

Itinerary

DAY 1: Arrive in Reykjavik

When you get to the capital of Iceland, head to the hotel that is included in the package. The remainder of the day is yours to independently explore the city.

Day 1: Embarkation in Reykjavik

14 Days

Location: Greenland & Iceland

You'll board your ship in Reykjavik this afternoon to start your journey. Prepare yourself for an amazing journey on board the cutting-edge vessel, the Ultramarine. Equipped with 20 Zodiacs that can launch quickly and two twin-engine helicopters, it offers a variety of off-ship activities in South Greenland.

DAY 3: At Sea

With a view of Greenland in the distance as we sail north across the Denmark Strait, your Expedition Team will get you ready for the experiences waiting ahead. Discover the amazing landscapes you will soon see, as well as the rich history, interesting animals, geology, glaciology, ecology, and climate of the Arctic. The crew will assist you in looking for whales that frequent the nearby waters as well as seabirds that are swooping about your ship.

The deep fjords with their sheer walls and hanging glaciers will be the first natural elements you will witness when we get closer to and land in Greenland. We'll investigate the unpopulated east shore.

There's a chance to see animals in this area, possibly even polar bears and humpback whales. In this remote, ice-laden region with cascading glaciers, alpine panoramas, and wildlife, activities include shore landings, hiking, paddle trips, Zodiac cruises, and heli-landings. We headed for the deserted east coast's wild fjords, one of which being Lindenow Fjord, or Kangerlussuaq in Greenland. Long before European explorers arrived and repeated waves of migration led to major settlements, communities of PaleoInuit hunters and fisherman lived off the land and survived mostly on the resources offered by the sea thousands of years ago in these remote fjords. Against the backdrop of tumbling glaciers and towering mountains, remnants of these ancient occupants can still be found today. There's a lot of wildlife to see in the fjords, particularly marine mammals. As polar bears travel southward on sea ice floes driven by the East-Greenland circulation, it is also possible to see them seldom. When approaching fjords, humpback whales are frequently seen because the shallowing waters cause an upwelling of nutrients to rise to the surface. The stunning alpine landscape beckons us to explore by air, sea, and land to fully immerse oneself in the isolated icescapes of the area while we keep an eye out for animals. For heli landings, shore landings, hikes, Zodiac cruises, and paddle trips, the wild east is perfect.

Greenland & Iceland

We'll sail into the Westlands along Greenland's breathtaking west coast—the same route the Greenlandic Norse took to get to the Western fjords. Especially at sites like the Kujataa UNESCO World Heritage site, you'll witness the contrast between the coast's verdant valleys, rich in Viking history, and the Greenland Ice Sheet, the second-largest sheet of ice on Earth. The latter offers a fantastic chance to discover the history, customs, and interactions between the Norse and Inuit cultures of the area. We will go on a helicopter tour of the massive Ice Sheet, climb in the nearby foothills, take a cruise through ice-filled lakes, and interact with the local people. We will explore the little village of Qassiarsuk and the ruins of Erik the Red's estate at Brattahlíð, which provide more context for understanding the history and culture of South Greenland. When you see the spectacular views of blue, ice-strewn waters against a backdrop of lush, verdant valleys and green pastures bursting with blossoms, you'll quickly understand why Erik the Red selected this land as his home and gave Greenland its name. Warm microclimates tucked away in the fjords, exclusive to Greenland and the Arctic as a whole, have produced an incredibly productive Arctic Garden of Eden. There are still farming customs in South Greenland that date back to the Viking era. Many families labour on their isolated sheep farms at the fjords' edges, living a life highly in sync with the seasons and growing a range of organically grown vegetables (like potatoes, turnips, and kale). We locate excellent access spots to the Greenland Ice Sheet in the West as well, which we will fly to via helicopter. Enjoy the most breathtaking views of the greatest mass of ice in the northern hemisphere, which stretches from the arctic plateau's highest points to sea level. With our included Greenland Ice Sheet Experience, you can become one of the very few people to ever step foot on this amazing body of ice. During the most profound and in-depth community experiences offered on any voyage, you will have the chance to explore the Ice Sheet, hike the nearby foothills, cruise or paddle through the azure ice-filled waters, and interact with our local friends and partners over the course of these two days.

14 Days Arctic Patagonia

Locations

We'll travel across the picturesque 105-kilometer Prins Christian Sund (Ikerasassuaq) and discover South Greenland's breathtaking fjords. Our group has organised a trip to the village of Aappilattoq, where you may take in the customs, music, and culture of the area. The trip continues to the 70-kilometer Tasermiut Fjord, often known as "Arctic Patagonia," with its sheer walls. Here, visitors may enjoy camping overnight and a variety of adventures among breathtaking peaks and glaciers. At the extreme southern tip of Greenland, at Cape Farewell (Nunap Isua), is a labyrinth of fjords, sounds, islets, inlets, and skerries (rocky islands), each with its own unique beauty. It will be genuinely unforgettable to traverse the Prins Christian Sund (Ikerasassuaq), one of the most picturesque fjords in the world. When the sun sets, visitors may anticipate breathtaking views around every bend as well as magnificent mountain and seascapes including glaciers plunging to the ocean. This domain is inhabited by Southern Greenlanders who are frontier people, a people as distinct as the environment they live in. The eastern hunting peoples who were migrating finally settled here, near the European commerce posts. The small communities in this southern area have become somewhat famous because of their residents' unwavering devotion to their hunting and fishing traditions. As previously said, we would like to take you to Aappilattoq, which is situated on the banks of Prins Christian Sund, to meet our friends and partners in the area. We would like our visitors to be able to experience the local way of life through hearing their stories, tasting their cuisine, learning about their hunting customs, and maybe even participating in a friendly match of football as a player or spectator. During your stay in Arctic Patagonia, you will have the opportunity to marvel at the enormous glacier at its head, which features rivers of ice that tumble towards the sea. Additionally, the imposing peaks of Ulamertorsuaq and Nalumasortoq dominate the skyline, providing the most picturesque backdrops for your helicopter tour or hike.
